Discussion Questions:

- We tend to think about remembrance in terms of time, but it's better to think about remembrance in terms of distance. Closing the gap between you and what seems far off, bringing it near. Given your current circumstances in life, what are some things that would be good for you to remember regularly? Things that help keep you oriented the way God intends.
- What After God delivers Israel from Egypt, the next step in Israel's development is to enter the desert wilderness. Can you relate to this pattern in any way?
- There may not be any other book in the Old Testament that gives us a clearer picture of freedom. Surprisingly however, the word freedom isn't found anywhere in it. God repeatedly speaks to Pharaoh through Moses saying, "Let my people go, that they may serve me." How should we think about freedom in this context?
