Discussion Questions:

- “There is not one square inch in the whole domain of our human existence over which Christ does not cry, Mine!” What are some implications of this for your own thinking and living, particularly in relation to “current events”?
- What are some positive examples of Christians impacting national governments? What would be the alternative(s) to Christians seeking to influence a national conscience – would those alternatives be preferable?
- “The advance of the Kingdom is a series of victories cleverly disguised as defeats.” How does that statement shape our expectations regarding the mode of our impact on the world? What does it say about the progress of the Kingdom even in times such as these?
